

Sole-Proprietorships are unincorporated businesses where you, as the person, are effectively the business, and there is no real legal difference between you and your business.

SOLE PROPIETORSHIP

An LLC is a legal entity that separates a person and their business and provides some tax benefits and legal protection.

LLC

BUSINESS STRUCTURES

C-CORP

A C-Corp is a type of corporation that is separate from its owners, offers liability protection, and the ability to raise capital through stock sales.

S-CORP

A S-Corp is a type of corporation that provides some tax benefits when passing profits directly onto owners or shareholders.