Build Rapport:

Hey <Name>! Where are you calling from today?

Pre-Frame:

If it's okay with you, I'd love to lay out a simple structure for this call to maximize your value from this conversation.

Typically, on these calls, I ask a lot of questions. I want to clearly understand your situation and what you'd like to achieve.

Then if I know with 100% certainty that I can help you reach your goals, I'll explain very specifically how I work with clients.

If for whatever reason this is not a good fit or you're not ready to work together at the moment, I'll explain the next steps you can take to move in the right direction.

Is that fair?

Establish Why They're Here:

My first question is, "Why are we here?" What made you take time out of your day for this call?

Draw Out Pain Points:

You mentioned that _____. Tell me more about what that's been like for you.

How does that make you feel?

When do you notice this happening?

When does this bother you the most?

Is there anything else you feel like you're missing right now?

Learn What Has NOT Worked:

What have you done so far to ____? How well did that work for you?

Is there anything else you've tried?

Cast a Vision (Opposition):

Okay, can we do a quick visualization exercise today? I think this could be really helpful to increase your motivation especially in those moment where you <insert bad habit they told you about>.

Let's say you get off this call and don't make a decision. Maybe you tell me that you need more time to think about it, even though you told me you've been thinking about this for the last 5 years. So, you delay and stay on the same path.

If you keep going at this rate, take me 5 years into the future. What does your life look like? How is your relationship with your spouse? What about your kids? Work? What's your health look like?

Wow, I can see why you wouldn't want that, it sounds exhausting.

Cast a Vision (Ideal Self):

Take me 12 months into the future and describe to me what your perfect life looks like. How will your body look? (or: How will you feel? What person will you have become?)

What else would you like to see change 12 months from now?

How will that improve your life?

Why is that important to you?

Identify Limiting Beliefs:

The future life you just described sounds really amazing. What do you think could prevent you from getting there?

Do you know exactly what you need to do to _____?

You mentioned _____ was an issue. Could that be a problem?

<I heard that time is one issue, but it also sounds like there is some missing information.>

GOAL:

Get them to admit:

- "I don't know how."
- "I can't do it."
- "I can't do it fast enough."

Recap Their Pain and Limitations:

Here's what I heard from you today: (insert 5–10 of their most crucial points). Is that pretty much where you're at?

GOAL: Get a YES from them. Do not move on until you get it.

Transition to Your Solution:

Okay great. Based on our conversation so far, I think I have the perfect solution for you. Would you like me to tell you very specifically how I work with my clients?

GOAL: Get permission to make your offer

Can you make a promise to me? I can share this solution with you, and we can talk about (the things the program will fix). But at the end of that time, if we decide that yes, this is the right choice for you, let's go forward. And if it's not the right decision, that's ok as well, but either way, let's decide yes or no because we both know that "let me think about it" is just a nice way of saying no.

Outline Their Solution:

My <Program Name> would be perfect for you. It has three main pillars.

- 1) Exercise (takes away pain)
- 2) Nutrition (take away pain)
- 3) Custom to them

Is that what you were hoping for?

Great, I'm glad we're on the same page, and we can get started right away if you like, but before we do...

What other questions do you have for me?

Answer Their Questions:

Answer their questions as succinctly as possible without diving into program features. Get them to say "I have no more questions."

Great. It sounds like this would be a perfect fit. Let me ask you something. Are you wanting to _____ now OR is this something you're thinking about doing 6 months down the road?

(Solve objection) Knowing that, is this something you'd want to get started on right now?

Get Them to Ask About Price:

Great, I'm glad we're on the same page. Here's what we can do next. We can register you for the program right here on this call and then we will book our first coaching call.

In order to register you for the program all I need is a credit card.

Close the Sale:

I used to charge $1,200 per month, so a 6-month program would actually be $7,200. But I found that when people committed to a 6-month program the results were life changing. So, if you commit to doing the work, I want to commit to you. So instead of being $7,200... <Program Name> includes everything we just discussed just for <price>.

GOAL: Complete the transaction.
