Social Media Guidelines

Social media is a powerful “one-to-many” platform, making it ideal for storytelling and personal connection. Posts that include authentic anecdotes and personal transformation stories tend to resonate most, including one or more for maximal impact:

- Include a photo of yourself: Include a photo of yourself, especially a transformation or “after” photo if relevant. This helps your audience visualize the results they could achieve by working with you.
- Repurpose your content: Turn your written post into a short video to reach a broader audience. Don’t be afraid to repeat your message in different formats.
- Warm up your profile: If you haven’t posted in a while, don’t let this be your first post in years. Share a few updates or relevant content first to re-engage your audience and build credibility.

Pro Tip: Tailor your content to your niche. If you coach for fat loss, share recipes, workouts, or motivational tips. If your audience is parents, include relatable stories about parenting, lessons learned, or family activities.

Example 1: Transformation Story

Our food industry makes it nearly impossible to see visible abs.

I hadn’t been in the 170s since my early 20s.

I stopped drinking, eating out, raiding my kids’ snack drawer, and trying to run the fat off.

The results? Better than anything I’ve tried before.

That’s why I’m opening up a few spots in a program I created to help others get similar results.

There’s a small investment to keep you accountable.

Note: Include a personal photo, especially if you have something that showcases your before and after.

Example 2: Emotional Hook

I never thought I’d fit back into that little black dress.

I saved it for “someday” when I hit my goal weight.

But after three kids, nothing seemed to work—until I did the opposite of what Instagram trainers preach.

It was easier than I imagined, and now it's sustainable.

I'm starting a small beta group to walk through the exact steps I used to drop 30 lbs.

Comment below if you want more info.

Example 3: Mindset Shift

I used to think extreme workouts, strict diets, and trendy fitness routines were the answer.

But when I started listening to my body instead of fighting it, everything changed.

A few small tweaks made all the difference.

I see so many people making the same mistakes I did.

That's why I'm launching a small group to walk through the exact steps that helped me finally see results.

If you want support with habits, nutrition, and accountability, send me a DM and I'll share more.

Email Guidelines

Email is a more personal and direct channel than social media, making it ideal for building trust and prompting action. The most effective outreach emails are:

- Personal and story-driven: Share your journey or transformation in a way that's relatable.
- Clear and concise: Respect your reader's time, get to the point quickly.
- Action-oriented: Include a simple call to action (CTA), like replying, clicking a link, or booking a call.
- Visually engaging: If possible, include a photo (especially a transformation image) to reinforce your message.

Pro Tip: If your audience is cold (i.e., hasn't heard from you in a while), consider warming them up with a few value-based emails before pitching your offer.

Hi [First Name],
Hope you're doing well! How are the kids enjoying school this year?
It's hard to believe it's been 4 years since Cabo. That trip was legendary!
Quick shameless plug for something new I'm doing...
Over the past year, I dropped about 40 lbs. by making a few simple changes to my nutrition.
Nothing extreme; just basic, sustainable tweaks that worked better than anything I've tried before.
Now, I'm running a beta test with a small group of people using the same approach. We'll focus on accountability, nutrition, and short workouts over the next 8 weeks. There's a small investment to help keep everyone committed.
If you're interested, just reply and I'll send over the details.

Example 2: Coaching Offer for Moms

Subject: New coaching program (and a quick hello!)

Hey [First Name],
Just wanted to check in! How's everything going with your workouts?
Are you still doing HIIT classes a few times a week?
Now for a little self-promotion...
I recently completed my Nutrition Coaching certification and started working with a few moms to help them drop around 20 lbs. of baby weight.
We're doing weekly accountability calls, sharing easy meal ideas, and using low-intensity movement that's been amazing for both body and mind.
Because it's a beta test, I'm offering it at a big discount in exchange for honest feedback at the end.
Not sure if this is something that would be helpful for you right now, but I wanted to ask. Let me know if you have any questions!

Text Messaging Guidelines

Text messages are typically more direct and casual, especially when you're reaching out to people you already know. Here are a few key tips:

- Keep it short and to the point: Unlike email, texts should be brief and easy to read at a glance.
- Use a friendly, conversational tone: Match the tone to your relationship with the person.
- Adapt from email templates: If you're reconnecting with someone you haven't spoken to in a while, simplify one of your email templates to fit a quick message.
- Personalize when possible: Mention something relevant to them (e.g., family, recent event, shared memory) to make it feel genuine.
