

TARGET AUDIENCE DISCOVERY QUESTIONS

1. Who are they?

- What are the key demographics of your ideal client (age, gender, occupation, income, location)?
- What communities, interests, or identities do they associate with (e.g., parent, athlete, entrepreneur)?

2. What do they want?

- What is the primary result or transformation they are seeking?
- What do they want more than anything else right now?
- What are the top three daily frustrations they experience?

3. What challenges do they face?

- What is the biggest problem they're trying to solve?
- What keeps them up at night (fears, anxieties, uncertainties)?
- What are they trying to avoid or feel embarrassed about?
- What is the cost of staying where they are? What happens if nothing changes?
- What is the most urgent issue they need to address immediately?

4. How do they think and behave?

- What do they complain about to friends or family?
- What is the biggest mistake they're currently making related to this problem?
- What are the 4–5 key steps they need to take to achieve success?
- If you were in their shoes, what high-level steps would you take to solve the problem?

5. Where do they spend their attention?

- Who do they follow online (influencers, podcasts, blogs, etc.)?
- Who are your top four competitors serving this audience?

6. What micro-problems do they face?

- List 15–20 small, recurring issues they deal with—either related to their main challenge or as side effects of trying to solve it.

7. Who have you helped before?

Describe your favorite client you've worked with—what made them ideal, and why would you want more clients like them?
