

Sample core exercises that are particularly beneficial for MMA athletes:

Planks: Increases spinal stability and local muscular endurance

Side Planks:
Increases spinal stability and local muscular endurance

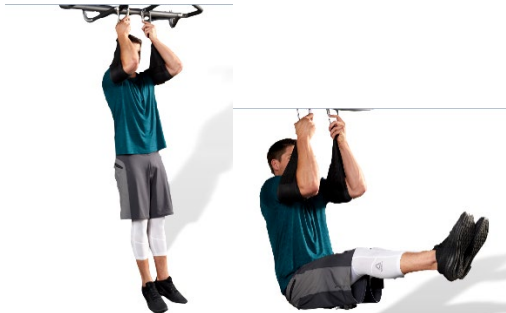

Dead Bugs:
Increases spinal stability and local muscular endurance

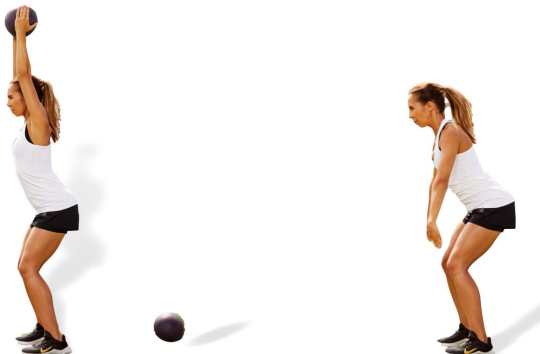

Kneeling Pallof Press: Increases spinal stability and local muscular endurance

Sample Core Exercises

Mountain Climbers: Increases dynamic core stability and hip flexor strength
Half Turkish Get-Ups: Increases dynamic core and shoulder stability
Seated Medicine Ball Russian Twists: Increases rotational core strength
Hanging Leg Raises: Increases dynamic core stability and hip flexor strength.

Stability Ball Jackknife: Increases dynamic core stability and hip flexor strength
Medicine Ball Slams (Soccer Throw): Increases core and latissimus dorsi power
These exercises engage various core muscles and can be more challenging as the MMA athlete's strength improves. It is crucial to remember that proper form and technique are paramount in these exercises to help prevent injury and ensure the exercises are effective. Regular core training will significantly improve an MMA athlete's performance and give them an edge in the ring or octagon.	